Local Matters.
The Horgan Block.
The new brown stone business block at the corner of Thames and Frank streets, being erected by Mr. P. H. Horgan, is now ready for the tenant and a couple of months more will find greatly increased facilities for business on this our principal business thoroughfare.
The structure is of brown stone, substantially built throughout, from plans by Mr. Charles L. Bevin. The ground floor is in one large store measuring 23x65 feet, with modern plate-glass windows in front and a row of smaller windows on Frank street, making it an exceptionally light and commodious room for any business for which it may be occupied. The upper stories project out some ten or twelve feet over the first at the rear, giving an ample driveway for the better accommodation of the store.
There are two entrances to the upper floors; one on Thames street and one on Frank street. The former is the main entrance, of course, and has a broad, easy rising staircase leading to a hallway running the entire width of the building twelve feet wide. Opening from this hallway are two rooms 11x15 feet each, on suite, occupying the front end of the building, and another hallway running lengthwise of the building, and extending back to the Frank street stairway. Opening from this latter passage way are three rooms, 10x15 feet each, fronting on Frank street, and one 15x21 feet, occupying the rear end of the building. These rooms are intended for business offices and are all light and airy.
In the third story is a hall 60x23 feet and 14 feet high, with two ante-rooms, 11x15 feet each, in front. In the roof, over the ante-rooms, is one large room, commanding an excellent view of the harbor and surrounding country.
The building is to be heated by steam throughout, and provided with all the modern conveniences for which it is adapted.
The late Capt. Carrigan requested just previous to his death that his old friend Lawrence Coggeshall should have for his marine gallery a first rigged ship, the same having been made by the captain when he was attached to the Light ship on Brenton's Reef. It is six feet long and is an elegant specimen of our old time mariners. More than a year was spent in building and rigging this ship.
Mr. Edmund Warren, son of Mr. George Henry Warren, of Newport and New York, died in the latter city Sunday after a brief illness of pneumonia. The deceased was one of the active young men of society and very popular with all who knew him. His funeral was solemnized on Wednesday morning.

The work on the new war college building at Coasters' Harbor Island is progressing rapidly. The work of wiring the building will be completed in a few days, and inside plastering was begun Tuesday.
A break in the wire at an early hour Tuesday morning caused several strokes of the fire alarm. The linemen immediately went to work and the evil was soon remedied.

The Newport Convocation Meeting.

The first quarterly meeting of the Newport Convocation of the Protestant Episcopal church, was held Wednesday morning at Emmanuel church and was largely attended. The sermon was delivered by Rev. At the business session in the afternoon representatives were present from Trinity, Emmanuel, St. George's, St. John's, St. Mary's and St. Columba. Rev. G. J. Magill, the dean, presided. The afternoon session was devoted to the reading of reports received from the dean and the treasurer. The feasibility of publishing a Journal in the interest of the convocation was considered at length, and Secretary King was instructed to communicate with the other convocations upon the subject.

At the missionary meeting in the evening, which was also largely attended, interesting addresses were made by Rev. Messrs. Lillenthal, Preston and Shields.
The next meeting will be held at St. George's church the third Wednesday in May next.

The Father Mathew Total Abstinence Society gave a very enjoyable social Thursday evening. Fully 75 couples participated. The hall, under the supervision of R. Q. F. Walsh, was beautifully decorated, flags, greenery and flowers being used to good advantage. The new Hampshire orchestra furnished delightful music. The reception committee made every one feel at home, and, judging from the smiling faces, everyone thoroughly enjoyed the evening's pleasures. The following gentlemen constituted the reception committee: Wm. Avelon, J. F. Sullivan, John Connolly, J. P. Sheehey and J. L. Butler. The Floor Director was Mr. D. E. Harrington.

The artistic part consisted of admirable singing by Mr. Henry Smith, and good piano-forte selections by Mrs. Stoddard and Mr. E. Y. Mason. The bodily wants were met by ice cream and cake, thus winding up a most capital "social."

The second ballot showed three for Mr. Corbett and two for Mr. Rankin and Mr. Corbett was declared the choice of the board and his name will be sent to the City Council at next Tuesday's meeting for confirmation.

Schooner George E. Vernon.

Capt. Amburst, of the schooner George E. Vernon, gives the following interesting notes of his trip across the Atlantic, to George F. Crauchall, managing owner:

ATLANTIC OCEAN, Dec. 21, 1891.
We left Savannah, Ga., 10:30 a.m., on Dec. 21, with a head wind and left her on into the Gulf Stream. The same night wind shifted to the northeast which gave us a good chance to the latitude of Cape Hatteras, when the wind shifted to north, afterwards to northeast, so that we were here to for several days. In fact, from the 20th to the 29th we made but 600 miles; wind veered to southwest and remained for five days, which gave us a fair run. The largest vessel we have made so far is 245 miles in one day. We have "logged" eleven knots, but have not had a chance to try it for any length of time.

The night after we left Savannah a shark bit off the rotator of our patent log, so we improvised one of the old style, and used a watch instead of the hourglass. On December 24th, we had heavy weather and reefed her down. In the afternoon we had a heavy squall, and during the night the sea increased. One large sea came along coasting the vessel to make a sudden pitch which broke the sparker boom and gaff. We saved the sparker and trawl without damage, but could not "fish" the sparker boom, as it broke at the jaws, so we had to put on the jaws by shortening the boom nine feet, and consequently, to use our sparker, we slipped out four cloths at the leech had shall come home with it. During this gale I had out two oil bags, which I had first time ever used it. The effect was incredible. In the future I shall always have some ready. We have now been here for a week, eastward of the Azores, but do not seem to get ahead much. Days, mostly calm; nights, rain and squalls, with wind flying around the compass.

We arrived off the mouth of the Gaudiquier river on December 30, at noon; could not go in with a strong current and an off-shore wind against us. We arrived next day, December 31, at San Juan, P.R., towed up to Seville and arrived January 1, ready to discharge.

CLEANINGS FROM HISTORY.

Presented by JAMES C. SWAN.

Judas Iscariot.

The Holy Scriptures make mention of three Judases. The first is Judas Maccabeus, the son of Mattathias, high priest of Medina; the second is Judas, the son of Joseph, the reputed father of Christ our Lord; the third is Judas Iscariot, the son of Simon, who lived in or near Joppa, a noted sea-port town near Palestine, six miles from Jerusalem, but on the opposite side of the river Jordan. This Simon was a man of credit and reputation; a tanner by trade. He was a married man, and the first child born to them was this Judas, who betrayed our Lord, of whom we might before his birth, as Judas claimed that it would prove a thief and a murderer, and bring shame, scandal and disgrace upon her, and all her generation; which so terrified the woman, that she, on waking from her sleep, swooned immediately into fits, and was like to go distracted; but her husband having never before known her to be in the like agony, strove all he could to revive her, and when she came to her natural understanding, he enquired the cause of her grief, of which she replied, "O, that I had never been born, forunking fate had decreed that our unborn child will prove both a thief and a murderer, and bring disgrace upon me and my family!" The birth of Judas, for so the child was named, brought more than the usual number of persons to witness his circumstance; he being the first born, and of credible parents. Soon after the woman rose from child-bed, and leaving according to the purification of the Jewish women, rendered thanks to God in the temple of worship for her safe delivery, she dressed herself in garments of disguise, putting on a veil of very cunning and curious workmanship, that her face might not be seen, to discover who she was; more notice, however, would not be taken of her if wearing a veil, because it was a customary article of dress among Jewish women; thus arrayed, she left her home in search of a malefactor, and when she had reached the house of him she sought, she told him the cause of her coming; saying, "Sir, I am the wife of our Simon, a tanner, living near the city, who have lately been delivered of my first-born, a man child; some nights before his birth I dreamed that he would prove a thief and a murderer, and bring shame, scandal and dishonor upon me and all my generation; and now he is born; and I have seen to it that he wears a mark, coming to me to be a cross, a gallows, and two daggers, with several pieces of money, which terrified me, and I fear it will fare with me as I have dreamed; and the chief reason of my coming here, is to know from you the interpretation of this strange mark." The magician answered, and said, "Woman, I am no interpreter of dreams, neither do I know the signification of this mark for me; it seems full as strange and amazing as it can be to you; but if you can tell me when your child was born, I will calculate his nativity and see what it produces." She told him the instant when her child was born, as near as she could guess; the magician called for pen and ink, and calculated a scheme of Judas' nativity, and when he had finished it, he shook his head, and his countenance waxed sad, which the woman perceiving, judged thereby, she had seen to good purpose, and so, howbeit, she had it important to know what he had to declare; then said the magician, "I must speak, I hope you will not be offended if I speak the truth. He is repelled, he is deceiving me not, let it be good or evil, it must be as God hath determined." Then said the magician, "To your sorrow have I seen by the rule of the planet that reigns predominant at your son's birth, that he will prove both a thief and a murderer; and I have seen to it that he wears a mark, coming to me to be a cross, a gallows, and two daggers, with several pieces of money, which terrified me, and I fear it will fare with me as I have dreamed; and the chief reason of my coming here, is to know from you the interpretation of this strange mark." The magician answered, and said, "Woman, I am no interpreter of dreams, neither do I know the signification of this mark for me; it seems full as strange and amazing as it can be to you; but if you can tell me when your child was born, I will calculate his nativity and see what it produces." She told him the instant when her child was born, as near as she could guess; the magician called for pen and ink, and calculated a scheme of Judas' nativity, and when he had finished it, he shook his head, and his countenance waxed sad, which the woman perceiving, judged thereby, she had seen to good purpose, and so, howbeit, she had it important to know what he had to declare; then said the magician, "I must speak, I hope you will not be offended if I speak the truth. He is repelled, he is deceiving me not, let it be good or evil, it must be as God hath determined." Then said the magician, "To your sorrow have I seen by the rule of the planet that reigns predominant at your son's birth, that he will prove both a thief and a murderer; and I have seen to it that he wears a mark, coming to me to be a cross, a gallows, and two daggers, with several pieces of money, which terrified me, and I fear it will fare with me as I have dreamed; and the chief reason of my coming here, is to know from you the interpretation of this strange mark." The magician answered, and said, "Woman, I am no interpreter of dreams, neither do I know the signification of this mark for me; it seems full as strange and amazing as it can be to you; but if you can tell me when your child was born, I will calculate his nativity and see what it produces." She told him the instant when her child was born, as near as she could guess; the magician called for pen and ink, and calculated a scheme of Judas' nativity, and when he had finished it, he shook his head, and his countenance waxed sad, which the woman perceiving, judged thereby, she had seen to good purpose, and so, howbeit, she had it important to know what he had to declare; then said the magician, "I must speak, I hope you will not be offended if I speak the truth. EDITORIAL NOTES

Chicago has gained the prize as the location for the Democratic National Convention.

Justice Bradley, of the United States Supreme Court, died yesterday morning.

There was an appalling fire in an Indianapolis Medical Institute yesterday. Many people were burned to death.

It is said that there is scarcely a family in all London but what one or more members of it are sick with influenza.

The city of Providence is just now greatly excited over the pollution of the Pawtuxet water. The Journal devotes an entire page to the subject.

Mills of Texas is still nursing his wrath. He has sent Speaker Crisp a letter resigning the chairmanship of all committees on which he was placed.

Next year, 1893, the Massachusetts people will have to elect a U. S. Senator and the question is already agitating the active politicians of that State.

The news from Chile is less warlike than it has been. It is said that a message of apology is on its way to this country, and that everything will soon be serene.

The coinage committee of the house has voted to report a bill for free and unlimited coinage of silver. Fredrick Williams of Boston does not seem to be in it.

We would suggest to our state lawmakers that this is a good season of the year in which to study and practice economy in the use of the people's money.

Sugar has been on the free list nine months. During which time the people have consumed 333,293 more tons of the article than they did in the nine previous months.

The General Assembly has not performed a very arduous week's work for the first one. They have, however, done about as much as could be expected for a dollar a day.

The noted Mugwump trio from Massachusetts, Messrs. Williams, Hoar and Andrews will soon be wanting to know "What they are here for" and that is what their Democratic colleagues in Congress are already asking.

One would naturally suppose that with the state running behind to the tune of nearly one hundred thousand dollars a year, and the people's burdens already increased one half in the matter of the state taxes, that the million and a half dollar state house scheme might be allowed to slumber for a few years at least.

Judge Smalley of Vermont, an office holder under Cleveland's administration, thinks that four years were enough for Cleveland and that he is no longer entitled to consideration as a Democratic candidate. Evidently the Judge will not expect to hold office under the next Democratic administration if Cleveland should happen to be at the helm.

The Hon. Ellery Wilson of East Providence has been telling a Providence reporter how things political are going in this state this spring. According to his prognostication, East Providence, Newport and most of the other towns of the state are surely and safely Republican. We are glad to know it, still we should feel safer if the elections had been held and the official majority declared.

It is well for the people of Newport they keep in mind the fact that the state Board of Valuation propose to increase her valuation from $29,438,550 to $45,575,300 which will add more than one half to her share of the state tax. This would make Newport's share of the million and a half dollar state house, one hundred and eighty thousand dollars. Quite a little tax for a needless luxury.

The Democratic members of the General Assembly are preparing to make political capital out of Gov. Ladd's early closing of polls recommendation. They have already announced through their organ, The Telegram, that the Republicans are endeavoring to deprive the laboring men of their votes by cutting down the hours of voting. Why the laboring man cannot vote in the morning before going to work does not appear. Still we do not see the need of action on this measure at this time. We think the law is all right as it is. We have heard no complaint in this region.

Mr. A. L. Leavitt has returned from Europe. Mrs. Leavitt will remain abroad some time longer traveling with her sister.

The beautiful little poem on music, by our townsman Mr. A. O'D. Taylor, will be found in another column.

Probate Clerk-elect Eugene W. Atkinson is convalescent and will probably qualify for his new position the first of next week.

The officers-elect of Newport Council, C. B. L., were duly installed Thursday evening.

Work has been resumed on Mr. Lovell Spencer's new villa on Halidon Hill.

Skating on Easton's pond has been among this week's pleasures.

Gov. Ladd's Message.

Gov. Ladd's annual message to the General Assembly, which was read in both houses Tuesday, contains a review of the affairs of the State for the past year. The financial statement shows a debt of $1,251,000 on January 1st. To offset that, there is a sinking fund of $1,019,683.83, leaving a net debt of $231,317.17. The expenditures of the State for the year have amounted to $1,211,352.23, while the receipts from all sources, including $37,433.31 returned by the General Government, for the direct tax money assessed in 1892, amounted to $1,202,263.13. Deducting this eighty-seven thousand from the receipts, and the expenditures of the State over-run the income by over ninety-seven thousand dollars. This is not a very good showing, especially as the State tax within the last half a dozen years has been increased one-half. The Governor truly says that the revenues of the State must be increased in order to meet the increased expenses. He recommends the adoption of the new valuation to be reported by the State Board of Valuation, which increases the valuation nearly one hundred million dollars, and nearly doubles, unjustly, the valuation of the city of Newport.

Public education receives a good word from the Governor, as well as do the teachers of the State and the State Normal School. On the subject of manual training, he says:

The Manual Training feature of educational work has received a permanent position in the public mind, though its progress is still slow. In Newport, through the means afforded by the Township trustees, work has already been begun in the forming of classical building and pottery. The city of Newport has also planned for the erection of a Manual Training School and in Providence such a school building has been completed. In Pawtucket, also, there is a strong movement which will doubtless result in the accomplishment of the same end. The progress of this valuable work at the Rhode Island School of Design demands larger quarters for the extension of this valuable institution. In an industrial state like ours this class of school has an immediate utilitarian importance, and it will be a glorious day for Rhode Island when we can furnish young men for our universities and workshops equipped with the preliminary education of skilled artisans as well as equipped for the professions.

The State House and School, the State Board of Agriculture, and the Agricultural School at Kingston all came in for a favorable notice. On the subject of the militia, he urges the recruiting of companies of the naval reserve in Providence and Newport. The military and naval force of Rhode Island now numbers 1492 officers and men. The Governor wants to see more money appropriated for the annual encampment of the militia. In this matter many of the taxpayers of the State do not concur. The Soldiers' Home at Bristol has been completed and dedicated during the past year and there are now 92 inmates there. The claims of the Fourth U. S. Regiment have nearly all been paid.

He commends the Australian ballot system, but claims that under this law the corruptionist can still get in his work. "The law," he says, "is defective in that it only strives to punish the voter who marks his ballots for identification; his vote is counted. A remedy lies in throwing out all ballots marked otherwise than as provided by law, and the law should leave nothing to the discretion of those who count the ballots." He puts in a strong plea for a law closing the polls in the four cities of the State at five o'clock. While his argument on this point may be sound and while there may be ample precedent in other cities of the country for such an action, we doubt the expediency of making a change in that direction at present. We believe in giving every one the fullest possible chance to cast his ballot, and anything that can be interpreted as abridging the rights of the laboring men will react on the party passing such laws. In Newport the polls close at 6:30 p. m. That arrangement has always worked well and we see no objection to its continuance. To be sure it makes a long day, but that effects only the ward workers, and the men that are employed by the city as wardens, clerks and supervisors. Those latter classes should be paid in accordance with the work they are required to do. The politicians and ward workers can take care of themselves.

Notwithstanding the bad financial showing of the State the Governor still nurses his pet scheme of a new State House for Providence, at a cost of a million and a half dollars and more. The plans he says are completed and soon the pictures of this costly monument will be exhibited to the admiring gaze of the entranced public. He recommends that a commission be appointed to inquire into the obstructions of the Stone Bridge and report what further action in their opinion the State should take in the matter.

On the subject of inland fisheries he says:

The Commissioners are giving considerable attention to statistics of our Bay fishing. Hook and line fishing has been exceedingly good for the past two years. The fish in our waters are scarce and with irregularity and whence they come and where they go is a mystery. Some fishing has often been held accountable for the absence of fish, nevertheless, when the most stringent laws against seine fishing have been put into effect they have failed to change the result. Fyke-trap and pound nets have been successful the past two years and yet from the capes of the Delaware to Maine there has been an immense run of fish. In the spring of 1890 our Bay literally swarmed with sea weighing about twenty-seven to the pound, which grew to, say, four to the pound by October, when they disappeared altogether. Last spring they returned averaging the same size, four to the pound, as at the time of their departure, and again in October they averaged two to the pound. Four years ago blue fish were so scarce that they averaged the slender $1.00 apiece. Last summer it was hard work to sell the catch.

The Governor renews his recommendation for biennial elections, and urges the passage of the judiciary bill that caused so much discussion last July. The message closes with a fitting mention of the death of Hon. John G. Clarke of South Kingstown, for many years a member of the General Assembly and at the time of his death a member of the state board of agriculture.

The two cottages being built on West Broadway and Equinety Park place for Mr. James T. Hazard are rapidly nearing completion.

WASHINGTON MATTERS.

The President Determined in Chilean Matters—His Proclamation on the Subject—A Thrill in the Press—Democratic Economy—Confirmation of Judge Post—The Senate Finance Committee is New York.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 18, 1892.

Apologies or fight, represents in three words the present status of the Chilean affair. The time for negotiation has passed. Two weeks ago the President would have sent all of the correspondence and his proclamation to Congress had it not been for representations made by Senator Munn, the Chilean minister. It is not believed that Senator Munn, who is thought to be sincerely in favor of peace, actually misrepresented the intentions of his government, but there is now little doubt that he allowed his hopes to influence his statements to a degree not warranted by what he must have known the feeling of Chile to be towards the United States.

It is now fully settled that the proclamation, which is all ready, and the correspondence will go to Congress just as soon as the report of Judge Advocate General Henry, who took the deposition of the sailors of the Baltimore, is received, and that is expected this week. There can be no doubt that Congress will respond by an immediate declaration of war and a sufficient appropriation to rush it to a successful conclusion. Every preparation that can possibly be made in advance of the actual declaration of war is being carefully looked after by the administration, although no details are being made public as it is not desired that Chile shall know what we are doing.

Ex-Speaker Reed is proving that he is as much of a thorn in the flesh of the democrats of the House, now making a pitiable exhibition of their incapacity to control national legislation, on the floor of the House as he was when in the Speaker's chair. So far he has only given them a little humorous nagging, but he will still.

The democratic party is always loud in its clamoring for economy as shown by the adoption of the Holman clap-net regulation by the House, but it was hardly twenty-four hours after the adoption of the demagogic manifesto before the democrats of the House gave the country a practical demonstration of their insincerity by refusing to curtail the number of committee clerks employed by the House, notwithstanding the statement of honorable gentlemen, members of the committee on accounts, that a number of the minor committees had no real need for clerks. The democrats are always willing to reduce any appropriation which is expended by republicans, no matter how much it may injure the public interest, but when it comes to reducing the patronage controlled by themselves they always fly the track and refuse to do it, as in this case, where they authorize the paying of a number of salaries for no other purpose than the bestowal of the patronage upon the selection of a number of unimportant committees who are democrats.

The Senate judiciary committee, at the request of Senator Turpie, has postponed consideration of the nomination of Judge Woods of Indiana, until the return of Senator Voorhees, who is expected this week. This is merely a courtesy, by no means unusual, extended to the Democratic Senators from Indiana who are better acquainted with Judge Woods' confirmation, and indicates no unfriendliness towards Judge Woods, whose confirmation is regarded as among the certainties.

Senators Aldrich, Allison, Hiecock, Carlisle and Harris, composing the subcommittee of the Senate finance committee, have gone to New York to complete their investigation, begun last summer, on the effect of the McKinley tariff law upon the trade and commerce of the country. Representative Boutelle, of Maine, made the most humorous speech of the session, taking for his subject the present ludicrous aspect of the Democratic party. From the beginning, when he said: "What a comical old humping the Democratic party is," to the end, when he said: "The people of this great country are going to have a happy and prosperous New Year in spite of the Democratic party, the gentleman from Indiana (Holman) and his nickel-in-the-slot machine," the House was in an almost continual roar of laughter, in which most of the Democrats good naturedly joined. Mr. Boutelle's lampooning of Representative Holman, Dooley and Wheeler, although entirely free from ill natured personalities, must have been galling in the extreme to those gentlemen, but neither of them attempted to reply, although Wheeler says he will.

Oh no, Tammany does not boss the Democratic party. It was merely by accident that the other twelve strongly backed applicants for the House restaurant privileges, which, owing to the large Democratic majority are much more valuable than usual, were turned down, and the one given to Tammany's man. It is also a slender probability, to charge that Tammany will control the decision of the National Democratic committee, which meets here this week, as to where the nominating convention shall be held, and yet, intelligent men, Democrats, are making the charge.

I take this opportunity to THANK all of my old customers who have bought them goods of me in former years, and again solicit your patronage for 1902. It will be their aim this year to make their goods even better than their usual high quality. All who have not used them I respectfully ask to do so and give them a fair trial.
